Building Careers Together ...

In professional life and in particular in science, the number of couples with both partners pursuing a professional career is increasing. These so-called dual career couples face complex challenges when one partner changes his or her scientific environment. The requirements in terms of flexibility in time and mobility often conflict with the desire for a professional career of both partners and a joint family life. Often, career and family are compatible only if the employer actively supports the career of the partner and provides individual support.

Dual Career at KIT

The KIT Dual Career Service responds to these challenges and offers a variety of counseling and support to the partners of newly appointed professors during their start in Karlsruhe. The aim is to support dual careers and to offer suitable starting conditions to new employees of KIT.
